

Beijing Street Locations & Hospitals Where Some Victims of the Tiananmen Massacre Died on June 4, 1989

FROM MASSACREMAP.COM • DATA AS OF FEBRUARY, 2008 • PRODUCED BY ELLEN BORK, TIAN JIAN, AND PHILIP CHALK

On the night of June 3-4, 1989, troops of China's People's Liberation Army moved into Beijing to crush the pro-democracy demonstrations that began in April of that year. The number killed remains unknown although estimates range from several hundred to several thousand. The government of the People's Republic of China insists that the demonstrators were counter-revolutionary criminals. Tens of thousands were imprisoned in the political crackdown that followed. A few years afterward, Ding Zilin, the mother of one of the victims, began to gather information about the massacre. Eventually, she and other victims' relatives formed the Tiananmen Mothers. They have gathered information about 188 victims of China's Communist regime. This map, which is based on their work, shows the places where 150 victims were killed or the hospitals to which their bodies were taken. Information remains insufficient regarding an additional 38 victims listed—some also unknown or partially identified—preventing their placement on the map.

This map is inspired by the efforts of the Tiananmen Mothers and Gunter Demnig, a German artist has placed over 10,000 plaques outside the places from which German Jews were deported to concentration camps. As Demnig has said, "To carve the name of a single person on a single marker is to say... This was someone just like you or me. Not just an anonymous victim of history." The Chinese Communist Party has many, many millions of anonymous victims. This map makes a small gesture toward honoring their memory.
